79. In ancient times there was a king called Midas. The name of the king was famous because he was the friend of Bacchus. Once Bacchus was captured by his enemies. He was liberated by Midas. Bacchus was indeed happy. Bacchus announced him, "I will give you a gift". This was pleasing to the king. He accepted the gift; afterwards many things were turned into gold if he touched them. Midas wished to make gold. He turned into gold, the tallest trees and also the land and also the water. Because of his gift, he praised God. He wished to have gold rather than wisdom. The king was made proud by his gold.
80. Atalanta was a Greek girl and was indeed beautiful. Many men had raced against her, but she ran with great speed and none surpassed her. Venus had a plan. The girl was the reward of victory and she was ordered to run by her foot. Hippomenes was prepared to run against her. Many were watching and encouraging him. Sign was given. Atalanta showed her speed. She was almost flying. How far in front of him she runs! But Venus thought Hippomenes the way to victory. He had given a golden apple. Hippomenes threw the apple to the ground. Atalanta stopped to run. Hippomenes increased his speed. Venus, the goddess of love has helped him well. Hippomenes thus defeated the girl with the counsel and gift of God.

81. John 13:1-15

XXI. Scribe Anglice brevem dissertationem de proposito minus quam 250 verba.

82. During the reign of Caesar Augustus, merchants from Alexandria and Felix Arabia used to buy spices from the emporia of Muziris in Kerala. Pepper was called "black gold". Greek and Latin manuscripts narrate the trade between the Roman Empire and the inhabitants of the Muziris port. Sailors and tradesmen putting out from the Red Sea had already known about the Indian ports. The history of Muziris is not dissimilar to the history of Pompeii. The people of Kerala are fortunate. Greenery is evident in far and nearby places. The land is fecund and fertile. There are many rivers, waterfalls and lakes. This is one of the most beautiful regions of India. Inhabitants live in the country and in towns. Towns are densely populated. Many work abroad and remit money to their families. They long to see their fatherland or motherland again. This Indian state excels in education. The people not only love their own language Malayalam but also learn two or three other Indian languages. The parents are educated and they take good care of their children. On feast days, they go to the movies and to the beach. They celebrate weddings and feasts with great enthusiasm. The people of Kerala are hospitable and welcome visitors with utmost warmth and joy. Don't like my most beautiful and dearest Kerala?
