ABOUT US

Anjuman-e-Islam Dharwad, is a minority institution registered as a public trust in 1952. It has been started with a mission to educate minorities in the city. The first step towards the revolution in minority education was made with the initiation of "Anjuman High School", which came into existence in the year 1953. It was the first Urdu High School in the region. The success of Anjuman High School motivated the management to start the junior college by the name "Anjuman Independent Pre-University College". In the year 1986, with the zeal to provide education at all levels, it started two new institutions, "Anjuman Urdu Primary School" and "Anjuman Arts, Science and Commerce College".

Because of the need of professional education for the society, the management added another feather to its cap by introducing Bachelor of Business Administration course, affiliated to Karnatak University under the name "Anjuman BBA College" in the year 1996. This step revolutionized professional education in the city. The success of first batch inspired the management to provide IT education through the introduction of the Bachelor of Computer Applications course in the year 2000 under the new name "Anjuman Institute of Information Science and Management"

The two courses offered at Anjuman Institute of Information Science and Management are affiliated to Karnatak University, Dharwad and recognized by the Government of Karnataka.

Since its inception, the institute is providing education par excellence in the field of business administration and computer application with the help of quality teaching and world class infrastructure to the students.
