He narrates the story of the tusker with great confidence. First he builds up a sound background for it. With these the story seems convincing. It is because there is some supernatural in the incident.

Question 4.

Why does the author say that Iswaran seemed to more than make up for the absence of a TV in Mahendra's living quarters ?

Answer:

Iswaran is a good narrator. He is also an entertainer like TV. Iswaran builds up suspense slowly. This affects Mahendra. Then he starts taking interest in his stories. This is all like the TV. So Mahendra does not need it.

Question 5.

Mahendra calls ghosts or spirits a figment of the imagination. What happens to him on a full-moon night ?

Answer:

Mahendra calls ghosts or spirits a figment of the imagination. But on a full moon night, Mahendra sees a cloudy form. It had a bundle. He thinks it the female ghost. She is clutching a foetus. Iswaran has told of it to Mahendra earlier. So he sees it. He then breaks into a cold sweat.

Question 6.

Can you think of some other ending of the story ?

Answer:

The story can end like this : Mahendra now decides to take Iswaran to task. He tells Iswaran that there are no ghosts : What one thinks remains in the subconscious mind for long. When such situations arise, one starts fancying the things. These are of one's subconscious level. There are no ghosts worth the name.
